NEWS

Summertime

It's summer! This means hot dogs on the beach, ice cream on the stoop, trips to The Cape and lots of you escaping the city. With so many of you away in July and August, and with many local businesses implementing summer hours, we decided to create a Summer Weekend edition, published on Thursdays throughout July and August. This special newspaper features extended movie, entertainment and Going Out content to help heat up your already hot weekend. And if you miss us too much on Friday (or Saturday, or Sunday, or anytime at all, really) our newsroom remains busy with updates 24/7 on www.metro.us. Sticking around the city? Then be sure check our local event site, www.MyMetro.us, for ideas on how to get out and about this weekend.

Denial. In a thick accent, Dzhokhar Tsarnaev on Wednesday entered not guilty pleas.

Accused teenage terrorist Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, 19, pleaded not guilty to all 30 charges related to the deadly Boston Marathon bombings Wednesday in federal court.

The shackled suspect wore an orange jumpsuit and had a crooked smile as he entered the silent courtroom, before flashing a grin to a group of spectators seated in the first row.

His lawyers occasionally patted him in an apparent effort to offer comfort, however Tsarnaev did not appear emotional. Despite reports of severe injuries sustained during an April 19 shootout with police, Tsarnaev appeared healthy, with a full head of curly hair.

His self-described supporters, seated in the back of the courtroom, let out an excited "yes" after Tsarnaev first spoke his plea, and were asked more than once by court security to quiet down.

Tsarnaev's sister was also in the courtroom, whimpering quietly, wiping away tears and holding a cooing baby. She shielded her faced with a white headscarf.

Following his plea, Tsarnaev blew a kiss in her direction before being led out by federal marshals. The entire court proceeding lasted less than 10 minutes.

Prior to the hearing, there was a mad rush of people trying to get into the packed courtroom, which had seats reserved for 30 of the bombing survivors. One man was heard threatening to sue the court because he was disabled, and therefore felt he should be given priority seating.

Security was understandably tight, as lines grew outside the courtroom.

Journalists were pulled aside for snapping photographs of people waiting in line, and one queuing civilian was reprimanded after stepping away to get a soda.

Outside, demonstrators who demanded freedom for the accused terrorist and claimed the bombings were a hoax clashed with bystanders who were present at the marathon finish line. One local man with a coffee in hand told the demonstrators that they were "F—in' sick."

Survivor Karen Brassard was hounded by media as she entered the court on crutches.

It was the first time Tsarnaev has appeared in public since his April 19 arrest in Watertown, Mass., where he was found injured, hiding in a dry-docked boat. His brother Tamerlan Tsarnaev, who was killed during a shootout with police, is also suspected of organizing the April 15 attack.

Seventeen of the charges brought against Tsarnaev carry a potential death penalty.

A media frenzy ensued after the arraignment, as survivors and family members left the building. Two self-described "Jahar supporters" said they were pleased with Tsarnaev's not guilty pleas.

Donning a "Free the Lion" T-shirt and wiping away tears, Lacey Buckley, 23, of Washington state, told reporters she was not convinced Tsarnaev was the culprit behind the deadly terror attack.

"I'm happy he pleaded not guilty, but it was sad to see him in that situation," said Buckley, making no mention of the victims. "It's hard to see him in handcuffs like that."

Prosecuting Tsarnaev

A federal grand jury returned a 30-count indictment last month accusing the Kyrgyzstan-born teen of carrying out the Boston Marathon attack, which killed three spectators, as well as the murder of MIT police officer Sean Collier.

- He faces charges of use of a weapon of mass destruction resulting in death, deadly bombing of a public place, use of a firearm during a crime of violence causing death, carjacking and causing bodily harm.
- If convicted, Dzhokhar Tsarnaev could be sentenced to death.

Preparing for court

Prosecutors said Wednesday they expect to call between 80 and 100 witnesses in a three- to four-month trial. Tsarnaev will make his next court appearance Sept. 23.

Bulger trial. Discovery, removal of the remains of victims is recounted

Jurors deciding the fate of James "Whitey" Bulger were shown dozens of disturbing photographs of the dirtied bones that were found in a secret gravesite where the alleged gangster discarded his alleged victims.

Ann Marie Mires, a forensic anthropologist who previously worked with the state medical examiner's office, was the only witness on the stand Wednesday in the alleged mob boss's trial.

Mires talked about working through a snowy and cold January night in 2000 to dig up the remains near Florian Hall in Dorchester. The area was searched after former Bulger associate Kevin Weeks identified it as the place where he, Bulger and gangster Stephen Flemmi buried the bodies in 1985.

"There's a lot of roots going through this material so it speaks to how long it's been in the ground," she said.

The bones of Arthur Barrett, Deborah Hussey and John McIntyre were found buried under dirt in an area about 2 1/2 feet deep. Paul McGonagle was also found buried in sand on Tenean Beach in Dorchester.

Mires testified that when medical examiners cut open McIntyre's skull, they found the bullet that Bulger allegedly shot into his head. Inside his skull was a green stain from the copper bullet jacket where it came to rest.

Mires' account helped support the testimony given by Weeks on Monday and Tuesday about the killings allegedly at the hands of Bulger. Bulger's lawyer attempted to paint Weeks as a liar during cross-examination.

The 83-year-old Bulger was arrested in Santa Monica, Calif., in 2011 after 16 years on the run. He fled after corrupt FBI agent John Connolly tipped him off just before his indictment for various crimes including racketeering, extortion and 19 murders.
MICHAEL NAUGHTON

More to come

Ann Marie Mires is expected to take the stand again Thursday.

- She will continue to answer questions from prosecutors and will likely avoid a heavy, if any, cross-examination by Bulger's lawyers.
- Bulger attorney J. W. Carney Jr. said Wednesday that he "did not have much of a cross-examination" of Mires.

MBTA suspends sleeping Green Line train driver

Nap time. A subway train driver was caught on video sleeping behind the controls of a Green Line trolley.

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

An MBTA Green Line driver has been suspended after a passenger discovered the driver asleep behind the wheel.

The passenger caught the snooze on video and gave it to a news station. A T spokeswoman said the agency was not contacted directly by the passenger who took the video.

The incident occurred Monday afternoon on an inbound D-Line train. The T said the driver was in the second car and not actually driving the train.

After the video came to light, the driver was suspended, pending an investigation. He started working for the T in January 2011.

"The MBTA has a very aggressive fatigue awareness program that is required for all safety-sensitive employees," the T said in a statement.

"Even though this operator was in the second car and not operating the trolley, there is absolutely no excuse for this type of egregious behavior. Our customers' safety is always our top priority, and they can be assured that this situation will be handled swiftly and with the utmost care. We continuously examine and improve upon our safety and training programs to provide our customers with the best possible service."

At least two T workers were caught on camera by passengers sleeping in stations last year. METRO

North American retailers set five-year Bangladesh factory plan

Nearly 20 North American retailers including Wal-Mart Stores Inc. and Gap Inc. unveiled a five-year safety plan for Bangladesh garment factories that would include inspecting every factory within a year.

The announcement in Washington by the Alliance for Bangladesh Worker Safety comes after the deadly collapse of a Bangladesh garment plant in April. Another 112 people died in a November fire at a Bangladesh factory. REUTERS

Train accident

Railway boss says sabotage not suspected in Quebec crash

There is no suspicion that the train disaster that destroyed the heart of the town of Lac-Megantic and left dozens killed or missing was caused by sabotage, the head of the railway, Ed Burkhardt, said.

It was plain someone had tampered with the locomotive of the Montreal, Maine & Atlantic train before the explosion, and it has now emerged that it was the fire department that was putting out an earlier fire, Burkhardt, the chairman of the railway, told reporters. REUTERS

NTSB. Much of the information released suggests pilot error as main focus of the investigation.

The pilots aboard the Asiana Airlines Boeing 777 that crashed in San Francisco relied on automatic equipment — an auto-throttle system — to maintain airspeed and did not realize the plane was flying too slowly until it was just 200 feet above the ground, the head of the U.S. National Transportation Safety Board said on Tuesday.

In her third detailed briefing on the July 6 crash, NTSB Chairwoman Deborah Hersman also said two flight attendants were ejected from the plane after its tail hit a seawall in front of the runway and was torn off. Both were found injured but alive on the side of the runway.

Hersman said many questions remained about the incident. The South Korean airline's flight crew members were not tested for drugs or alcohol after the crash, a requirement for pilots of U.S.-based carriers involved in accidents, she said.

The accounts given to investigators by the pilots, as relayed by Hersman, confirmed information from the plane's flight data recorder that showed the plane was traveling 25 percent below its target airspeed as it came in for landing. REUTERS

TOM FOREMAN

POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

CNN = POLITICS

NOT YOU AGAIN?

How is it possible that in our nation of 310 million people, the same ones surface over and over again, convinced that they are destined to lead us? I write this, of course, as Anthony Weiner, Sarah Palin, Rick Perry and Eliot Spitzer are once again swirling through the news. Each is in the process of or pondering a run for high office yet again, and I find this, in a word, astonishing. And in another word, irritating.

I'm not trashing them for their past records or political peccadillos ...or, in the case of Texan Perry, his armadillos. Each has proven at some juncture capable of winning the public's trust and support, and heaven forbid I should impede their quest to, as Steely Dan once sang, "Do It Again." I'll even put aside the ready arsenal of hooker and Russia-from-my-house jokes I have at my elbow. (Well, I suppose I can pass on just one punchline: "So the hot dog vendor says, 'No, I'm pretty sure I did not get a tip.'")

I'm just saying it must take a mind-blowing sense of mission for anyone to emerge from a political defeat or scandal so ready to jump back into the fray. Perry and Palin? Sure, they'd fit the bill if you were looking for a great name for a new steak sauce, but as presidential power players they were spectacular failures. Spitzer and Weiner? Both were chased from office like Edward Snowden at a CIA picnic. And yet, all four of them are back in the game, as if neither party could possibly find anyone else capable of carrying the political torch.

I'm not sure what it says about us as voters, but this does not suggest a lot of imagination on the part of the two major parties. Because you can bet your ballot there are people in this vast country who would make great leaders if either side would just go find them, instead of spending all their time on recycling candidates like old cans.

Type 1 Diabetes?

Up to 70% of people with diabetes develop nerve damage.

Diabetes nerve damage can affect the legs, feet, or hands, causing numbness or loss of sensation. But since this nerve damage comes on gradually, many do not even realize they have a problem - until it leads to more serious complications.

Doctors at the Translational Pain Research Group at Brigham and Women's Hospital are conducting a research study of an investigational medication that may help reduce nerve damage for people with type 1 diabetes. If you choose to participate, you will receive a no cost, non-invasive test to help determine if you have early signs of diabetes nerve damage. You will also be compensated for time and travel.

Q&A

Have you seen "Man of Steel?"

No, I haven't. I haven't seen many movies, because I've been making one. The only two or three times I've gone to the movies in the last few years have been to movies that my daughters want to see. So I went to "Les Miserables" and I went to some animated movies — movies that I would not necessarily have gravitated towards. But that's being a parent, taking your daughters to see the Justin Bieber concert movie.

GUILLERMO DEL TORO

The "Pacific Rim" director talks destroying cities in a civilized way.

THE MAN WHO WOULD PLAY WITH BATTLEBOTS

Guillermo del Toro is first and foremost a movie buff, which has been causing him a distinct amount of unhappiness. You see, del Toro has been so busy making movies — particularly his latest, the giant robots vs. giant monsters blockbuster "Pacific Rim" — that he hasn't had any time to actually watch other people's movies. Or at least that's the excuse he gives for not having seen "Man of Steel" or the first installment of "The Hobbit," which he was originally pegged to direct.

There's been a lot of criticism about the levels of carnage shown in "Man of Steel." Your film also features a great deal of urban destruction. How do you keep that from crossing the line from fun into too realistic?

Well, kaiju movies by definition bring a completely escapist fun in these type of fights. When you're a kid and you're watching Godzilla stomp a bunch of tanks or jets or cut through a city, the proportions of these things are so enormous that you cannot correlate them to anything real. What I do is I then bring in visually a very different sense of style from reality. I have these super-colored lights illuminating the rain, so it looks like a living comic book or a living anime. And the thing that I do very, very consciously is I vacated all the streets so they would be empty of people. So you're never thinking, "Oh, the kaiju just crushed 600 people." Because the streets are vacated and everybody's in a refuge, all they can destroy is buildings and vehicles when nobody's there.

Are you planning to do another non-English language film anytime soon, or do you live in Hollywood exclusively now?

Yeah, I would love to. I produce a lot of movies in Latin America and Spain, and I'm producing a movie right now in Mexico. As a director, I would love to do it, but I need to find a story that suits me. It's not like I have a drawer full of stories in Spanish and in English. [Laughs]

What determines if a story is better told in Spanish rather than English?

You cannot aspire to do a movie that is as quirky as "Pan's Labyrinth" in the Hollywood machinery. It would get tested and noted by executives to death. It would end up having a happy ending and all that bulls—. And at the same time you cannot end up with a movie that is as spectacular and huge and magnificent in showmanship as "Pacific Rim" if you do it in Mexico or Spain. So, depending on the scale of the story, depending on if you need to protect the production value and spectacle or if you need to protect the content and quirkiness of the story, you go from one [end of the] scale to another.

"Pacific Rim" introduces audiences to numerous "kaiju" — giant, belligerent monsters — and "jaegers" — the giant, human-piloted robots mankind creates to fight them off and save the planet. It's a movie clearly made at least in part with action figures in mind.

"My favorite jaeger is Cherno Alpha, because I think he is adorable," says del Toro. "It looks like a giant iron boiler. And my favorite kaiju is Leatherback, the gorilla-esque one, because I fully identify with his beer belly."

1 Lamar Odom cheated on Khloe Kardashian

Khloe Kardashian has kicked husband Lamar Odom out of their home for cheating.

But it gets worse. He cheated with a stripper. For more than a year. And he paid her.

According to the bombshell report from Star magazine, the woman in question is 29-year-old stripper Jennifer Richardson, whom he met at the Stadium Club strip club in Washington, D.C., after a Clippers game last year.

The first night they hooked up, Odom took care to take "her phone apart and put the pieces in different spots all around the room" so she couldn't record their tryst.

But that doesn't keep a resourceful stripper from becoming a "source" to Star magazine for money!

More on Clooney and Keibler split

While news of George Clooney and Stacy Keibler's split may have come as a surprise to some, the writing had apparently been on the wall for quite some time for their doomed relationship, according to Us Weekly. "They hadn't had sex in months," a source says.

"He's been in Europe, and she's in L.A., and they haven't seen each other in a long time. Some girls would be OK with that and just be happy dating George, but not her."

According to TMZ.com, the two ended their contract, erm, relationship, over the phone. You know, being George Clooney's arm candy really does wonders for your status in life. Back in 2002, Keibler was just a WWE wrestler who listed "table dances" as some of her onstage moves.

And now she's been on the red carpet of the Oscars twice and will host her own television show, "Supermarket Superstars," on Lifetime (it premieres on July 22; what a coincidence!).

I will hand it to Keibler — she's been able to parlay being George Clooney's plus-one into a celebrity career of her own better than most.

"★★★½ THIS SUMMER'S 'LITTLE MISS SUNSHINE'."
-Claudia Puig, USA TODAY
"WAY, WAY WONDERFUL. A JOYOUS MOVIE. THE BEST ONE I'VE SEEN IN A VERY LONG TIME."
-Joe Morgenstern, THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.
"★★★½ BRACINGLY FRESH AND FUNNY."

Pain with every step you take?

Do you have Diabetes?

Do you suffer from persistent burning, throbbing, or tingling pain in your feet? Are you currently taking medication for this pain?

If so, you could have a condition called Diabetic Peripheral Neuropathy (DPN). You may be interested in a medical research study of a drug that is approved for neuropathic pain associated with DPN.

Individuals who qualify must be:

- Men or women who are 18 years of age or older;
- Currently diagnosed with Type 1 or 2 diabetes; and
- Currently taking a non-steroid anti-inflammatory drug (NSAID) primarily for a non-DPN pain.

1268: A study of Pregabalin in the treatment of subjects with painful Diabetic Peripheral Neuropathy with background treatment of NSAID for other pain conditions.

The Front Bottoms bring back some serious fun to music

Music. The acoustic punk duo answers life's big questions.

The Front Bottoms are not fronting. / MARK JOWARSKI

Quirky? Yes. But what did you expect from a band with an album titled "My Grandma vs. Pneumonia"?

But there's a serious side to The Front Bottoms, and perhaps that's why they're selling out shows across the country.

"The society we live in is a little intimidating, especially for a young person trying to figure out what is going on," says Front Bottoms front man Brian Sella. "All these crazy things are happening in this world — where do I fit in and what's my place?"

Case in point is the band's sweeping rocker, "Twin Size Mattress," a weighty look at the twilight of childhood with references to teenage drunken hijinks and a friend who spirals out of control. It's from the band's latest album, "Talon of the Hawk," which debuted at No. 3 on Billboard's Heatseekers Albums chart in May. "Hawk" has the air of fun spontaneity but with an underlying tone of maturity.

The Front Bottoms were founded by Jersey boys Sella and drummer Mathew Uychich, high school friends who teamed up in 2006. Despite being from Bergen County, next door to New York City, the duo would drive down to Philly to play the basements of Drexel University and the living rooms of Penn students early in their career.

"Manhattan is a rough place for a two-piece pop-punk band, so Philly became a regular spot that we would go and play," Sella says.

Sella and Uychich have recently added a bassist and guitarist for the live show.

"I think people like that me and Matt started the band, and we went on tour and we're, like, living the dream, and we never gave up on it," Sella says. "In the end, we're playing the songs we wrote and people are singing along. It isn't very complicated, and it feels good."

Shine bright like a diamond

Synth-Pop. There's more to Diamond Rings than glitter.

Diamond Rings' John O'Regan won't be pigeonholed. / NORMAN WONG

If you were to catch a Diamond Rings set for the first time, and had no knowledge of or expectations for their music, your initial reaction might be ... whoa!

Because the heavily '80s-influenced synth-pop outfit (the solo project of Toronto-bred John O'Regan that recently expanded to include a full band) seems designed to throw you off balance. O'Regan dresses like Ziggy Stardust-era David Bowie, vogueing and throwing his angular, androgynous form around the stage.

"Yeah, Bowie comes up a lot," says O'Regan. "I think because, obviously, there aren't as many men in music who wear makeup as there are women. But I think when I look to my inspiration in terms of what I do aesthetically, it's probably women more ... say people like Annie Lennox or Grace Jones — women who are assertive and powerful without sort of stooping to the lowest common denominator and just prancing around in a bra and panties. I think it's empowering."

O'Regan's empathy for and identification with femininity has spurred speculation about his sexuality. And, for some, his flamboyant stage persona might seem like shtick. But that's all sort of beside the point.

"I think, initially, it was just a way for me to unsettle the audience, by kind of unsettling myself," he muses. "When I started out in Toronto, trying to make a name for myself, a lot of what was going on was just heteronormative indie rock."

With Diamond Rings, O'Regan (who previously, and briefly, fronted a fairly "heteronormative" indie band of his own, The D'Urbervilles, before going solo in 2009), wanted to step outside that box. Really, he wanted to smash apart that box's walls.

"The goal became to kind of present a show where I could leave people not fully sure of what they've just seen," he says. "A lot of times you go see a band and you feel like you've figured out the whole thing within the first minute. My goal is to always keep engaging people, or re-engaging people, and that was kind of a big approach with the new record [2012's "Free Dimensional"]. I think it's important for people to see that people aren't just one thing. People can be a lot of different things all trapped in one body."

Quoted

"I think when I look to my inspiration in terms of what I do aesthetically, it's probably women more ... say from people like Annie Lennox or Grace Jones." O'Regan

Parquet Courts are in session

Parquet Courts are stoners. Make no mistake about that. The Brooklyn-based quartet don't mind that press outlets have focused on this not-so-secret fact, revealed in song titles like "Stoned and Starving" and "Yr No Stoner," on the band's excellent "Light Up Gold" album from earlier this year. But what bugs the band is when people use the term slacker.

"I think it's kind of a romantic image to conjure up this view of us as these vagabond stoner/slacker dudes just traversing the U.S. and just barely scraping by," says singer and guitarist Andrew Savage. "But the slacker thing really gets on my nerves because it kind of implies that we don't work very hard, when in reality, this is one of the hardest working bands I've ever seen. We work extremely hard, and as prolific as I am, I don't think that the slacker title is appropriate."

"Light Up Gold" showcases that prolific work ethic, as the 15 songs bleed together in an exhilarating punk rush of 35 minutes. Savage's words are sometimes silly and often narrative, with a novelist's eye for detail. Parquet Courts jam, but never noodle. This is indie rock the way it used to be.

"People's curiosity has waned, and they stopped kind of digging for stuff like that," says Savage when we bring up the dearth of current bands who draw from the likes of Pavement and Guided by Voices. "But I don't think it stopped. I think it just stopped being presented to people in the way that it was ... and the mainstream top 40 indie, to me it resembles kind of more easy listening and commercial pop music, so it's not coming through the same venues, but it never stopped."

THEATER

'Assassins'

Friday through July 20
Arsenal Center for the Arts
321 Arsenal St., Watertown
$21-$26, 617-945-0773
www.fudgetheatre.com
The FUDGE Theatre Company presents this darkly comic Steven Sondheim musical, profiling nine very different figures in American history, all of whom have a single thing in common: They all tried to kill the president. Some succeeded, some didn't. It's weird territory for a musical, but that's part of what makes it so great.

MOVIE

'A Band Called Death'

Friday through Sunday
Brattle Theatre
40 Brattle St., Cambridge
$8-$10, 617-876-6838
www.brattlefilm.org
Death were a band of three black dudes from Detroit in the early 1970s whose style and attitude were pure punk. There was only one problem: They were four years too early for punk. Record labels were intimidated, their debut album was shelved, and three decades passed before they got their proper due. This film tells a story where people like Jack White, Alice Cooper and Henry Rollins came to call themselves fans.

FESTIVAL

A look inside Outside the Box

This month, the inaugural Outside The Box performing arts festival brings nine days of free performances to the Boston Common and City Hall Plaza (July 13-21). Dave Koz and Friends are playing on Sunday at 3 p.m., so we asked him about his favorite outdoor concert memory. Stay tuned to Metro next week where we'll ask other performers to share.

"I love ribs. Babybacks, beef ribs, you name it. So, I had to partake in the offerings. I mean, it would've been in bad form not to," the jazz saxophonist jokes about playing the Richmond Rib and Jazz Fest in Virginia. "Only problem was, we were the last act on the bill that day, and all the rib stalls would've been closed after our set. So, if I were to taste some of these delectable offerings, the only thing to do was to eat them before our show. I can tell you now, without reservation, eating a plate of ribs and then trying to blow a saxophone for 90 minutes immediately after, well, it is not a wise idea. "

It's almost impossible to overestimate the importance of this British post-punk act. Their experimental willingness to push punk's iconoclastic spirit in new directions encouraged bands on both sides of the Atlantic to do whatever they wanted, precedent be damned. MATTHEW DINARO

Batter up. Hit Wicket is a sports bar for a different kind of fan.

When we first heard about Hit Wicket, the new cricket bar in Inman Square, we had a some questions. Namely, what the hell is cricket, anyway?

That's an exaggeration, but the sport — hugely popular in the rest of the world, particularly the former strongholds of the British empire — is still largely ignored here. They'd like to remedy that at Hit Wicket. At the least, they'd like to provide a place to watch a game, says co-owner Nada Heredia.

"The idea ... is to provide a platform, in the mainstream concept of a sports bar, for Americans to get to know cricket and for die-hard cricket fans to have a meeting point to watch, discuss and debate cricket," she says, noting that there's room for our hometown teams on the tube as well.

The bar (as well as the food) menu focuses on beers and spirits from cricket-playing nations, with a decidedly Indian focus. Kingfisher, India's most popular beer, is on tap, a rare find around Boston. The Indian Old Monk rum is a must try. It's intense, with an extraordinary vanilla, caramel and molasses profile. Try mixing it with cola, coffee, or, better yet, soda water with lime.

Many of the cocktails on the menu take their names from cricket terms. The Sticky Wicket starts with salty caramel vodka, is rinsed with Glenfiddich, and comes finished with a salt rim. It's an intriguing sip and, thankfully, the scotch smoke and salt dial back the sweetness. You'd be best off saving it for after dinner.

Another cocktail serves as a dinner within itself. The Vodka Puri is made with vodka, date chutney, pani puri mix (Indian cooking spices), mint and cilantro. It's served with little pani puri bites (crispy flour shells filled with potato) into which you pour the cocktail. It's the most savory, spicy cocktail I've ever had — and certainly a novelty — but, like the game of cricket itself, it's worth trying... if only to see what the rest of the world is so excited about.

Bloody good day for a game, old chaps! / ERIN BALDASSARI

EL PELON

A beast of a burrito, one that's bigger than your face, is one of the world's most satisfying lunch creations. A burrito that you have to support with both hands because it's armed to the teeth with rice, beans, crazy succulent meat, maybe a little crema and guac and some limed onions if you're feeling sassy. In the past, you've given up halfway through one of these monsters, stashing it in the fridge for later, but you have never stopped searching for the Burrito Holy Grail. Look no further, for it resides at tried-and-true local favorite, El Pelón Taqueria. Get the fish burrito, and then frame this paragraph in homage to your ideal lunch.

Horoscope

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.
The time is now ripe to tackle something that you've been reluctant to attempt. Don't be — you'll be lucky when there's a lot on the line.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
If you're involved in something that is moving along well, don't upset the applecart. Leaving it undisturbed only enhances its probabilities for further improvement.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
Ventures that you personally create, develop or control have excellent chances for success. This is the day to back your own horse instead of betting on someone else's.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
You're more fortunate than usual, in that you have several people pulling for you whom you may not even be aware of. They'll give something you couldn't have gotten yourself.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
You've just entered a cycle where, with a little extra effort, you can make your hopes a reality. Stop sitting on your expectations and start doing something to realize them.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
When it comes to a commercial negotiation, don't be reluctant to ask for the moon. Even if you have to settle for less, you should come out rather well.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20.
It's time to view an important arrangement from a different angle. A fresh perspective is likely to reveal a number of benefits that you've been overlooking.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18.
Some important changes are transpiring that are likely to be very advantageous for your career. Be on your toes and dress for success.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
You could be unusually lucky when it comes to partnerships. Several alliances will prove beneficial and educational.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.
Though you may have been experiencing trouble in your social life lately, your material affairs will continue to go well. Each is operating under different aspects.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.
Important personal matters can be advanced if you are bold and assertive rather than laid-back. You'll function best when you're up-front about everything.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.
Your material prospects look to be very encouraging, especially in arrangements you share with one or more people. Don't be selfish and try to keep things for yourself.

Smokers have no pity

Re: 'Smokers the butt of unfair prejudice' (Metro, July 9) I'm very allergic to cigarette smoke. Smokers keep lighting up at the bus stop, often not leaving me enough time to run to another stop. If I say anything, through the washcloth I'm holding over my mouth and nose, they say some lame garbage about how cars are worse for me. I'm trying to catch a bus to work, not jump in front of cars!

Give up your seats, kids

I am tired, physically and emotionally, of standing on a packed subway gazing down at the 20-somethings (or younger) occupying all the seats. I'm not superannuated, but I am nearly 60, and haven't passed for 20 in a long time. Well, I was raised differently. I always offer an older person or pregnant woman — or anyone who looks like they need it — my seat, because it's the right thing to do. I'm not patting myself on the back here, because everyone used to do this! Sadly, it seems that a once common courtesy is quickly dying out. And many thanks to the people who still do — but you must have noticed how many people DON'T!

Do working dads feel guilt?

Re: 'Victoria Beckham weighs in on working mother debate' (Metro, July 9) So another working mother tells us how difficult it is: It's a juggling act, how guilty she feels, etc. When are we going to have a debate on working fathers? I had a single father who worked all the time and wasn't there even when he was present. Nannies and relatives raised me. And no, he never had any guilt.

Sene's electric play getting up to speed

MLS. Revolution's second-half success will be largely tied to the improving health of Saer Sene.

Saer Sene is finding his groove.

The striker with riveting ability has battled back from a left ACL tear that he suffered toward the end of the 2012 season. He finally looked at home in the Revs' 2-0 victory over San Jose on July 6.

"Not back to 100 percent (yet)," Sène said. "I need time. After injuries, it's hard because you lose your rhythm, and you have to work hard to get it back. But I am getting back slowly. The coach and everyone is giving me the time to play 90 minutes, and I'm going to get back and try to do my best for the team."

Sene played 90 minutes in back-to-back games for the first time this season against the Earthquakes and Chivas USA the week prior. He had been used as a 25-30 minute substitute for much of the first half of the season for head coach Jay Heaps. The patience that Heaps has shown with his electric forward looks to be paying off and could give the Revs that extra boost to climb up the standings in the second half of the year.

The Revs own a 6-5-6 record as of July 10 and are in the middle of the pack of the MLS Eastern Conference standings heading into this weekend's showdown with the Houston Dynamo at Gillette Stadium (July 13, 7:30 p.m., CSN). The Dynamo have worn the Eastern Conference crown each of the last two seasons.

Proving his worth

Revolution goaltender Bobby Shuttleworth has been a steady presence in net for New England, as the 26-year-old keeper owns a 0.93 goals against average with 14 goals allowed in 15 games this year.

- Former No. 1 keeper Matt Reis continues to help develop Shuttleworth. Said Revs head coach Jay Heaps about the transition: "I think Matt Reis has been an excellent person for this role. He's pushing Bobby and, for me, Matt has been a true professional."

NHL. Bruins ink Rask to $56 million deal to run through 2020-21 season

Tuukka Rask / GETTY IMAGES

Tuukka Rask is here to stay for the long haul. Through 2021 to be exact.

The Bruins announced Wednesday, July 10, that their franchise goaltender will get a franchise deal — an eight-year contract worth $7 million annually. Rask was phenomenal throughout the Bruins' run to the 2013 Stanley Cup Final, leading the league in save percentage (.940) while recording three shutouts. In 36 regular season games Rask recorded a 19-10-5 record, owning a 2.00 GAA.

The 26-year-old was playing on a one-year deal, signed in 2012 after serving as Tim Thomas' backup for several seasons including the B's Stanley Cup-winning year in 2011.

Rask was traded to the Bruins in 2006 by the Maple Leafs in exchange for goaltender Andrew Raycroft. Boston will be on the lookout for a potential backup for Rask after the Carolina Hurricanes snatched up Anton Khudobin last week on a one-year deal.
